Streetscape Comment

One of the elements that defines a community is its visual welcoming appeal. Do the FBC consultants agree with this concept and if so, what have the consultants suggested to mitigate the loss of trees at the main intersection in downtown Chappaqua that were removed as part of the sidewalk replacement project?

The current bare concrete imagery does not provide a welcoming visual appeal to put more feet on the street when compared with the former more pleasant and welcoming greenery as shown in the before and after images. Have the FBC consultants suggested replacement trees properly located to replace the removed trees and if not why not?
